LONDON, July 30.—The American round-the-world fliers arrived at Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, at 4 P. M.
today, according to a Central News dispatch.*ABOARD UNITED STATES CRUISER
MR. RICHMOND, KIRKWALL, SCOT-LAND, July 30.—America's round-the-world aviators flew gracefully into Houghton Bay at 4 P. M. today. The three army planes came out of the haze which shrouded Scapa Flow and circled gracefully before they alighted on the bay.*There was a tremendous cheer from the blue-jackets who had been straining their eyes toward the horizon for more than an hour in expectation of the airmen. "We had a pleasant trip, although the fog caused us some trouble," Lieutenant Lowell Smith, flight commander, said.*BROUGH, Eng., July 30.—The American flight was resumed today, Lieutenant Lowell Smith and his comrades taking off for Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands, 450 miles to the northward, at 10:30 A. M.*At dawn the three planes, split and span for the stars of the last long trans-Atlantic journey, were wheeled to the slip-ways and launched on the Hammer River. They were supplied with oil and fuel and four hours later were in the air, roaring northward.
A large crowd cheered the departure.
The weather was calm, in contrast to the rainstorms that had hampered the airmen in the final preparations at last week. Waiting for the flight at Kirkwall is Major Howard C. Davison, air attaché of the American embassy in London. He and Smith will consult weather reports from Iceland and Greenland when the aviators arrive.*ATHENS, July 30.—Major Vanno, Argentine aviator attempting an eastward flight around the world, left Salonica at 7:45 A. M. today for Constantinople.*Daniel C. Hood Will Enter Second Century Thursday*Tomorrow Daniel C. Hood, the city's grand old man, will enter into the second century of life. Mr. Hood was feeling fine spirits today in anticipation of his 100th anniversary.*During the forenoon he expects to motor to Uniontown with Attorney S.
R. Goldsmith. They will visit the courthouse, where Mr. Hood expects to greet Judges Van Swearingen, Rep-port and Work, and the newspaper offices.*They will then return for a dinner party of members of the family at the Hood apartments in the Colonial Building.*W. H. Shaw Claims To Be Oldest of City's Natives*W. H. Shaw, veteran of the Civil War, who on June 9 celebrated the 44th anniversary of this birth, today laid claim to being the oldest man in the city who was born here, reared here and has been a life-long resident of the town.*If there are others he would like to hear from them. There are older ones, he admitted, but he contended he would not come up to the qualifications specified.*Boy of 14 Plays Cowboy; Kills His Brother of Five

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—Pasquale Durante, 14, accidentally shot and killed his five-year-old brother, Carmelo, with a revolver early today, while demonstrating how cowboys handle guns.*The boy had read a wild west novel and was telling the story to his brother, using the revolver to illustrate how the cowboys held up "tajuns."*New Station Seats.
New seats have been placed in the Baltimore & Ohio station, making quite an improvement and also adding to the comfort of the patrons of the company.*TROUT SEASON ENDS THURSDAY.

vania.*Ku Klux Klan Will Hold
Day and Night "Konklave"
On Limestone Hill, Aug. 30*According to an announcement made yesterday by S. M. May the Ku Klux Klan of this and neighboring sections will hold a day and night
"konklave" on Limestone Hill, West Side, on Saturday, August 30, being the first demonstration of large proportions by this organization in this vicinity.*The details of the gathering are being arranged by the Colonel Kraw-ford Klan No. 35, which is said to have a large membership in Connellsville and vicinity. As outlined by Mr.*May the program will be varied one and will consist of base ball games, dances by the "Kavaliers" and the "Red Hooded Dragons," features by the women's and junior branches of the Klan, day and night flights by acrobats, the night flights to be illuminated by search lights. Fireworks*will be a part of the night display. The several degrees will be exemplified by selected teams of Knights and addresses will be made by officials of high rank. Refreshments will be provided during the day and evening.*Mr. May stated that it has not yet been determined whether a parade would be held. He said the exercises, except the conferring of degrees, will be open to persons who can be won over by some member of the order.*The Klan will wear their regalia but will not be masked except during the initiation of a class of several hundred "candidates."*It is anticipated that the "konklave" will draw members of the order from all parts of Southwestern Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland and that the attendance will be very much in excess of 10,000.*MacCABEES WILL PARADE OVER CITY
IN CARS TONIGHT*MacCabees of Connellsville will join in an automobile parade over the city this evening, starting soon after 7 o'clock from the South Side and traversing Pittsburgh street to Crawford avenue, to the West Side, returning to Pittsburgh street in Fayette street to Cottage avenue, to Murphy avenue to Crawford avenue, to Robbins street to Fairview avenue, where the procession will disband.*The object is to arouse interest in the caravan of MacCabees to Washington in July, 1925, for the convention of the supreme tent. The procession is scheduled to form in Washington avenue and other side streets, if needed, at 7 o'clock and to move at 7:15. It was said an effort will be made to have 50 cars in line. The Fremen's Band will play. Fire Chief W. E. DeBolt will lead the procession in the small fire truck.*After the parade there will be an illustration of candidates and lunch.*Supervising Deputy C. D. Robinson of Pittsburgh will be at the meeting.*Only members who have made 100 points in a nation-wide membership*campaign are eligible to join in the caravan to Washington. H. G. Bal-ton, member of the Connellsville tent and district manager, is the only one here to qualify so far. He has 140 points. Seven others are aspiring to places in the caravan.*Medical Defense"*Of Franks Slayers Precipitates Fight

By United Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Attorney Robert Crowe and his staff of assistants made a vigorous effort today to prevent admittance of a long-awaited
"medical defense" of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb. A bitter fight between the state's attorney and Clement Darrow and other defense lawyers opened as soon as court convened and temporarily blocked presentation of the defense testimony.*Dr. William A. White of Washington was called to the stand as the first to testify for the defense. After the state's case was rested, Walter*Bachman, a defense lawyer, started questioning him but was immediately interrupted by Crowe who demanded that the court either exclude medical testimony or grant a jury to try the question of insanity. "These boys," your honor, "have pleaded guilty," Crowe shouted, "and any attempt of the defense to introduce insanity should be stopped by this court. Your honor has no authority to decide whether these boys are mad or insane. If this question is to be honored your honor must, under the law, empanel a jury."*Judge Caverly overruled him and a long discussion between the court and Crowe ensued. Opposing attorneys argued, quoting rulings in support of their arguments. Crowe and his assistant, Thomas Marshall, argued heatedly, while Darrow and his ides answered with equal vigor.*Shop Crafts Will

Spent Fortune in Search

I spent $1,800 in 7 years treating with physicians, sooth specialists costing me $10 a visit, only to last say that nothing could be done for me that had cancer or ulcers of the stomach. I suffered awful pains in my stomach, but after taking a few doses of Mayra's Wonderful Remedy these all disappeared and for 3 years am feeling fine. It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Saved by Roosevelt's Ideas of Square Deal

When Roosevelt was getting ready for his African trip various sportsmen suggesting him to take along a guide, as a matter of course, volume travel suggestions.

"When you get to Nairobi," said one—a Mr. Blank, a happy-go-lucky, care-free prospector chap, who had dived into the jungle and out again two years before—"whatever you do don't hire a guide by the name of W. E. is capable enough but not trustworthy."

The day Roosevelt reached Nairobi he inquired about this particular guide. He sent for the repudiated guide and got his side of the story, says the Milwaukee Journal.

Just as Roosevelt had divined it was a mountain made out of a mole hill. The damning word dropped by Mr. Blank without warrant had left stark misery in its wake for the guide after that he could get no employ from any hunter who came to Nairobi.

Roosevelt heard all this. By way of rejoinder he smashed his literary rearranged it over night to include a ten days' expedition never before dreamed of in that section of the country. He hired the Nairobi guide to take entire charge of the trip.

When the expedition got back in scheduled time Nairobi's houses were heard from Roosevelt. He said: "That guide is the most intelligent, the most industrious, the most reliable and the most satisfactory guide I have ever had."

The rehabilitation of the wounded guide dated from this utterance and this act of Roosevelt's. Again the man began to be sought after by hunters.

Parasols Are Much in Summer Fashion Picture

There has been a change in sentiment regarding the charm of a tanned complexion, and parasols are having a sweeping vogue. Observes a fashion authority in the New York Times: All of the new modes in gowns, the latest patterns, colors and materials are repeated in the latest parasols, required from Paris. There are taffeta silks, in plain colors, plaid, check and stripes. One pattern is a plaid and plain silk are used in alternate bands around the parasol. There are crepes in plain colors and printed in all the new patterns, in floral designs, basketwork, etc.

The covering of one new parasol is an especially drawn design, emblem in character in black, white and rose, with a tray of gold. The picture scene sunshades shown earlier for the Palm Beach season are in evidence in variations. A white silk shade on sticks of white bamboo tipped with ivory has a sun gill in natural gray, white and black painted across the top.

A parasol of white gauze stretched over a white enameled frame and lined with white silk is painted with a mass of roses in natural colors. The printed crepes in black and white and colors silk printed with a Japanese pattern large polka dots in colors on white and black on white and the palm leaf design seen so much in the new dress silks are all very popular.

Parasols generally are very sun sunny. Most are shown in the natural shade, many with a border of colored velvet ribbon two or three inches wide. In these are also pretty shades of green, orange and red each with a border of contrasting color, oftenest black.

To carry with the light summer dresses are red and green parasols of bone. A Parasol overtly made of wide rainbow ribbon is slightly gathered at the top. Another is covered with frills of harlequin ribbon and one with small frills of valenciennes lace.

Flowered chiffons in the sweetest pastel and colors cover some of the white silk parasols. Frills and sticks of white enamel or light wood and colored velvet, agate, jade, amber coral, onyx or gold delicately carved and finely carved wood are used in the handles.

The extreme variety is the velvet parasol. One of black liberty velveteen is lined with white silk on a frame of white embroidered wood with four tips the stick being of white with a handle of onyx and silver.

Scarf Is Popular for Wear on All Occasions

Elsewhere and on all occasions this season one meets the scarf in one form or another. No costume seems quite complete without this accessory. The strictly tailored suit favors the scarf arranged close about the neck in the manner of a stock collar, while afternoon frocks feature the wider, longer scarfs of soft silk georgette or chiffon. But whatever the participant type of scarf they are all ready to make a charming head-dress for the woman in negligee.

To wear with those charming garments are shown accessories specially designed to accompany them. There are the dainty lace caps with their net trim and ribbon ties, most of them trimmed with little French bows or dots. Some of them, the newer ones, are scarcely caps at all but rather bands that sit about the head with no practical purpose for being than to make a charming head-dress for the woman in negligee.

Popular Color Schemes

Bright red used alone or red and white combined are conspicuously featured in the modes of summer.

CHILD FALLS INTO SCALDING WATER AT VANDERBILT

Baby Newell, Three Years Old, Daughter of Nelson Newell, Badly Burned.

OTHER NEWS OF THE DAY

Special to The Courier.

VANDERBILT, July 30.—Ruby Newell, three years and a half of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Newell of Paul Works, was badly scalded about the body yesterday morning at 10 o'clock when she fell into a bucket of hot water. She is in a serious condition. This child was standing near the bucket. In moving backwards she stumbled against the bucket and fell into it.

Hot Social at Church.

The Altrurian Men's and Women's Club classes of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church held a hot social last evening at the church. A musical program was carried out. The Sunday school orchestra contributed largely to the program; Miss Grace Collins gave a piano solo; Miss Grace Snyder a reading and Misses Ethel Mae Collins and Irene Harper recitations. Following the program refreshments were served.

Loyal Jubilee Picnic Tomorrow.

The Loyal Junior Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church will hold its annual picnic at Strickler's Farm near Jefferson school where the local populace is constructing a swimming pool. The members of the class and their friends are requested to bring their lunches with them. A sports program is being completed.

Cat When Autos Collide.

Ambrose Sepkovic received slight cuts on the face Sunday evening when the coupe owned by Steve Rotcheck, in which he was riding, and another, said to be owned by Mike Shenklin of Murrybank, collided at Elkhart's Crossing. It was said that Shenklin disappeared immediately after the collision. He forgot his coat and when the state patrol was notified, the title to the car was found in the coat. All but Sepkovic escaped uninjured. The front part of Rotcheck's coupe was badly damaged while Shenklin's coupe had a front wheel torn off.

Shaffer Quits Business.

Clayton O. Shaffer, for some time engaged in general produce business and running a pool room, besides, has decided to quit "the game." Mr. Shaffer is engaged as general produce manager for the Connellsville Market. He is a well known business man of the town and was one of the first to sign the half holiday movement. He is one of the many friends of The Courier, keeping the local representative in touch with the latest events.

Hundreds at Bargain Day Sales.

Hundreds of the local populace flocked to Connellsville yesterday to take advantage of the low prices offered during Bargain Days. Another large crowd from Vanderbilts is expected to come into Connellsville today.

CAPSTAN AND TROTTER TEAMS CLASH TODAY

Two of the strongest local teams will clash this evening at 5 o'clock at the South Connellsville grounds when the crack Trotter team combats with the Capstan Independents. The two teams are out for blood as the Trotter team held the "glass blowers" to a tie several months ago, with Alexander working on the mound for the neighboring cokelites. This evening, Alexander will twirl against his former mates. It is probable that Frazer will oppose him on the mound.

Another large crowd is expected to witness this evening's tilt. The Trotter team has not been playing recently due to numerous reasons, but expects to renew their baseball schedule and start by defeating one of the strongest amateur teams in Western Pennsylvania. The game starts at 5 o'clock. Let's turn out strong and root for the team!

Divada and Masontown Play Today

The Divada Independents will play Masontown this evening, giving the tri-tow business a little excitement for the half holiday program and in inaugurating the Dawson's half-holiday today. The game will begin at 5 o'clock and every player is requested to be on the grounds at 4 o'clock. One of the strongest lineups of the year will be presented against the Masontown outfit. Manager Abele announced last evening.

With the addition of Brown and LaForte to the roster, the Divada outfit boasts of one of the strongest teams in the coke region. Negotiations are under way to arrange for another meeting with the Capstan Independents. The game will, in all probability, be played within two weeks. Just who will receive the honing assignment for this evening's tilt is a mystery. Manager Abele expects to send a new mountaineer to the hill to twirl the game.

Perryopolis was scheduled for this evening but displayed poor sportsmanship in cancelling the game, according to the Divada officials. Wallie playing at Perryopolis, an agreement was reached between officials of both clubs to play at the Dickerson Run grounds this evening. Yesterday, the Divada officials received a letter from the Perryopolis aggregation calling for a large guarantee or cancellation of the game. The Young Valley team officials took the cancellation as the best means and scheduled Mason-town.

Good Game Seems Assured Saturday Evening at D. Run

The crack Newell ball club, undefeated for the year, will play at the Dickerson Run grounds Saturday evening in the fourth game of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad League. The local outfit has lost two of the three games already played, being defeated once by the Newell outfit. With revenge as the only thing to please them, the Dickerson Run outfit will go into the fray determined to wallop the league leaders.

It is probable that Durbin will work on the mound for the Young Valley outfit. He has already buried two of the three games, winning the first from Pittsburgh and losing the second to Monessen. He twirled good games on both occasions, errors beating him at Monessen.

LET US HAVE THE ROAD CELEBRATION.

The sentiment among the people of the mountain townships being so strongly and so generally in favor of a public celebration to mark the opening of the first section of the Connellsville-to-Farmington Road, the people of Connellsville cannot consistently, or fairly, disregard the demands of this very important tributary section.

We have so few opportunities to celebrate occasions of this kind that we ought to be glad when they do come. No better means could be provided for bringing the people of the city and the mountain townships into closer fellowship than an informal, all-day picnic and celebration. Friendships and acquaintances can be renewed and new associations formed which will be of inestimable value and a source of pleasure to all.

We of the town have allowed ourselves to become so much absorbed by our own interests and affairs that we do not take the time or opportunity to show our appreciation of the fact that, together with the citizens in the country districts, we are in reality one big family, the welfare of all the members of which is dependent upon what is jointly or severally done to promote it.

By all means let us have a celebration that will show we can get outside our shell and can gather with our neighbors entirely free of all the artificial restraints which have too long prevented us cementing our relations with the strong bonds which are formed by contact and companionship.

THE RADIO AS REGULATOR OF CAMPAIGN ORATORY.

Very proper regard for the listeners is being shown by the radio broadcasting stations in the regulations adopted to govern campaign speeches. By limiting them to 15 minutes, and requiring that they must be interesting and couched in simple language reduces the knowledge the radio people have gained of their audiences. They have made it plain that they like a varied program and that a talk has to be exceptionally interesting and well delivered to be listened to for longer than 10 or 15 minutes.

That road slinging or abuse of opposing candidates or parties are not to be tolerated in speeches delivered for broadcasting is one of the advantages of the most modern method of campaigning. The broadcasting stations can make this rule very effective, being able to stop the flow of a message to listeners in the infinite the speaker goes beyond the limits prescribed. At the same time the radio fans can do some censoring of their own at the receiving end. When a speech becomes dull or distasteful in any particular they can turn a dial and stop its reception entirely. In these respects radio campaigning will have a very decided advantage over the ancient form of listening in person to a stump speaker who feels himself untroubled by time, subject or character of his message.

One effect of the broadcasting regulations will very probably be that, taking their cue from the speakers who appear before the microphone other speakers will feel themselves under the compulsion to exercise restraint in their mud slinging tendencies. If they do not they will undoubtedly find that the radio will prove to be much more popular among persons who are really desirous of being informed upon the issues of the campaign, in preference to being amused or, in some instances, offended by abusive references to opposition candidates.

It is not improbable, therefore, that the radio will be a much more potent agency in influencing voters during the campaign than the spellbinders who have to depend upon their lung power to provide the carrying power of their partisan appeals. At any rate the radio will afford listeners in opportunities to hear more than one side of an issue and under circumstances that will tend to the formulation of sounder decisions as to the choice of candidates when the votes are cast. For these reasons the employment of the radio will create a new and large interest in Presidential elections, stimulate more persons to become voters and may have an effect on the result which cannot be foreseen by the most astute and disengaging political forecasters.

The Orkneys: First of the Airmen's "Points North"

"It is appropriate that American airmen in their round-the-world flight will make their first stop in the Orkney Islands after leaving the British mainland," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Though it is having its first contact with American airplanes, this island group is familiar enough with American ships of the sea, for it was headquarters during the World War for important work by United States naval units.

"The Orkneys barely escape being a part of the Scottish mainland. A channel only six and one-half miles wide, Pentland Firth, separates John O'Groats—the northeasternmost tip of Great Britain—from the southernmost Orkney; and the other islands lie close beyond. In this channel lies a whirlpool little less sinister than the Maasstrom itself. This patch of seething waters is known as the Swakie, and was poetically described in old Norse Sagas as the 'mill over grinding the salt of the ocean.' The Pentland waves dash so high on the little island of Stromness in the Orkneys' midst that at times a sizable 'creek' of salt water runs through the leat from the top of its northern cliffs.

"The Orkneys make up a country of Scotland and in combination with the Shetlands send a member to the British House of Commons. Their combined area is about 375 square miles.

The population, above 30,000 a generation ago, has dwindled to less than 25,000."

American fliers are officially scheduled to alight at Kirkwall, but local considerations may cause them to bring their port-of-call places down on the waters of the city's historic 'back-door harbor.'

"Though the Orkneys saw numerous naval vessels during the progress of the World War, they were especially associated with the gigantic task of the removal of the great North Sea mines fields by American mine sweepers. During this dangerous work in 1918 scores of ships of the United States made their headquarters in Kirkwall harbor.

"The Orkneys have been British territory only since 1468 when they were a wedding gift to the King of Scotland and his Danish bride. Norwegian adventurers had taken them over in the 10th century after their early Pictish inhabitants had mysteriously disappeared. They became a part of Norway in 1083 and remained a Scandinavian possession until they passed to Scotland. The people are of mixed Scandinavian and Scotch blood.

"The Orkneys make up a country of Scotland and in combination with the Shetlands send a member to the British House of Commons. Their combined area is about 375 square miles.

The population, above 30,000 a generation ago, has dwindled to less than 25,000."

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

HELLO THERE!

I like a friendly greeting
To a good old friend in this way.
I want to say I'm meeting
A friend I've known for years.

It is good to hear him say
With a smile of recognition
Some such phrase as "How are you?"

For it puts me in condition
For the tasks I have to do;

But when someone cries: "Hello there!"

It gives me a trifle lame.
From the way he lets it go there
I can tell he's lost my name.

When the glad acquaintance throws
You a kiss,

It is good to know he's known you.
And just where it was met.

He has heard your salutation
And is ready to reply.

And he's got a right to maintain
That he doesn't care to try.

For the name he knows he might be
About upon the morning air.

But one trick he can resort to—

He just answers "Hello there!"

Bargain Days have proven a big success because the merchant provided big bargains and the buyers had full confidence that they were getting big values for their money.

President Coolidge's record during his first year in office is the best assurance of what he can accomplish for the best interests of the country and all its people during a full four year term at the helm.

A priori, awaits the inventor who can devise a dial mechanism by which stereo speakers can be turned off as effectively as the radio broadcasting and receiving stations will be able to regulate the flow of campaign oratory.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

For Long Trips

One Mother Says:

When taking a trip on a train, particularly if the journey is to be a long one, always carry an envelope full of jigsaw dolls. Take my children a few pieces at a time, adding to the "family" as their interest lags. If the dolls become soiled on the trip, the train is trifling.

GOFINS BURIED IN 1514 FOUND IN CANAL CHANNEL

Discovery in China Leads to Belief That Waterway Has Changed Its Course.

Suchien, China.—Discovery of about a dozen coffins in the bed of the Grand canal whose course near here lately was diverted, has stirred the interest of scholars and given rise to the belief that the famous waterway in the days of the Ming dynasty, when the coffins were buried, ran east of its present bed.

It was with the announced purpose of deepening the waterway and of recovering rich soil at the same time, that a dam was built last February across the stream just north of Suchien city.

The water was turned into an old dry river bed leading toward Hangchow and the canal was drained. In digging near here the coffins were brought to light.

Three contained bodies of the Chang family, Chang himself and his two wives, who had been buried between 400 and 500 years ago.

Investigations on a stone at the man's head gave Chang's name and a brief account of his family, relating that he had died in the twelfth year of Djenghiz Khan of the Ming dynasty, about 1514 A. D.

It is accepted that it was only by unexpected chance that the final resting places of persons of Chang's rank could come to be under the waters of the Grand canal and therefore, it is believed a century or so after these interments the course of the stream was changed into the channel it has followed in recent generations.

Wild Rabbits Are Pest on This Island

Olympia, Wash.—When it became a serious question whether the United States government or rampaging wild rabbits should retain possession of the Grand Island, a "tight little little bit" of 68 acres right square in the inner end of the peninsula of Jean de Fuca, the government called upon the biological survey for help.

Ike K. Coach, in charge of rodent control work, returned recently from a tour of investigation and is planning a campaign needed to clean out a great many buntings. The rabbits are there by the thousands.

Smith's Island does not figure strong in agricultural reports but is the location of one of the oldest and most important light-house stations on the state's water, and the navy now has a radio compass station there.

No king of finance got their start as light-housers and to check the poachers most keepers have a side-line to increase income. Some 25 years ago some keeper introduced several varieties of rabbits on the island and for years keepers harvested about $200 worth of them a year in Seattle.

President Wilson made the Island a bird resort, barring all dreams, and the rabbits continued to multiply until they became a pest. The cat for help complained they were breaking under the foundations of the government buildings and gnawing and killing the few trees and eating up all edible vegetation.

Chinese Make the Best Wives, Sailor Claims

New York.—Chinese women make the best wives in the world, according to Capt. George Ward of the Chinese Junk Amoy, now at anchor in Sheepscot head Bay. Ward married 10 years ago the younger daughter of a Pearl river junk owner. She is first mate of the Amoy, now 20, son, chief cook and crew of the dragon-headed steamship that trails astern.

Ward said with emphasis that he wouldn't swap Miss Ward for "any milk-stocked dame" he ever met in his life, characterizing her as a "top-side pal."

"I'd have married mamma ten minutes after I saw her on the deck of her dad's junk up the river above Amoy. She was raised on that junk and hadn't even been ashore. We were married when she was fourteen. Neither of us ever felt sorry—did we, mamma?"

"No," answered Miss Ward, racking a blisss shock over the knee of her blue trousers—"All time glad."

All the Way Up

"How is that wayward son of yours getting along?"

"Not very well at present, but no one can say he has not struggled from the foot to the very top."

"How is that?"

"Why, he started as a chiropodist, but soon gave it up and became a 'star'."

Grim Reaper

CHARLES EWING WATSON

Charles Ewing Watson died at his home in South Connellsville on Tuesday, July 25 at 1:30 P. M. He had been confined to his bed since March 15. Previous to that he had spent some time in the South in the hope of regaining his health. Endocarditis was the immediate cause of his death. He was a well known Baltimore & Ohio engineer, having been in the employ of the railroad company for the past 28 years. He was a son of the late John B. and Rhoda Lincoln Watson. His boyhood was spent in and around Uniontown. Since his marriage in 1906 he has resided in Connellsville. He was in the 18th year of his age. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Eva Burrows of Confluence, and one daughter, Mary Elizabeth, at home. Two brothers and a sister also survive, W. H. Watson of Uniontown, Robert Watson of Brownsville and Mrs. John Robinson of this city.

Funeral services will be held from his late home at 9 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Francis J. Scott officiating. Interment in Oak Grove Cemetery, Uniontown.

CHARLES E. JAMES

Charles E. James, 69 years and four months old, well-known resident of Connellsville, died suddenly Tuesday night at 8:45 o'clock at his home, 496 East Crawford avenue. He had been in poor health for the past two and one half years but was able to be about. He died about a half hour after going to bed. Mr. James was born in Pittsburgh July 26, 1866 and was educated in the schools of that city. He was a painter by trade, but retired from active work about three years ago. Mr. James located in Connellsville about 40 years ago. Besides his wife, Mrs. Theresa Stillwagon James, he is survived by four children, S. B. James, A. J. James, Mrs. Sadie Quist, and Jane James, all of whom are grandmothers also surviving.

The funeral service will be held Friday afternoon at the home, followed by interment in Hill Grove Cemetery.

AUSTIN P. DANIELS

ALVERTON, July 30—Austin P. Daniels, 87 years and 10 months old, died Tuesday morning from a stroke which he suffered in December. He was born near Chippewa and spent most of his life there, and was a merchant until 1909 when he moved to Alverton. He had been sexton of the cemetery here for 16 years. He was a member of Danice Lodge No. 889 and a member of the Church of God. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Delinda Daniels, two sons, James of Tarr and Jacob of Pittsburgh; one daughter, Mrs. Jimmie Fleming of Chippewa. There are also 13 grandchildren and three great grandchildren, also four brothers, George W. Daniels, Miller Daniels, Branwyn Daniels and David Daniels, all of Chippewa.

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 P. M. at the Church of God at Alverton.

JOHN S. ELLIARD

The body of John S. Elliard of Pennaville, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Rice of Massillon, Ohio, was brought to Connellsville yesterday afternoon on Baltimore & Ohio train No. 16, and removed by Funeral Director J. E. Sims to Hill Grove Cemetery for interment.

The season thus far, with its abundance of moisture and cool weather, has been ideal for the spread of the disease. It is probably present in many localities of the state at the present time. Plant pathologists at the Pennsylvania State College are urging continuous and efficient spraying especially in wet weather, as the one means of warding off a destructive epidemic.

More than 25,000 acres were sprayed last year with an average increased yield per acre of 68 bushels. About 4,000 farmers in the state found spraying the most effective means of lowering their cost of production and thus increasing their profits from "spuds" in 1923.

FRANK G. TANNENHILL

ROCKWOOD, July 30—Funeral services for Frank G. Tannenhill, 69 years old, was held this afternoon from the family home with Rev. Kooser, pastor of the New Centerville Lutheran Church officiating. The interment was made in Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Laura Tannenhill, Mr. Tannenhill was survived by the following children: Mrs. E. F. Fleischman, of Rockwood, Mrs. J. D. Critchfield, of New Centerville; J. O. Tannenhill, of Pittsburgh and C. G. Tannenhill, of Rockwood.

MRS. MAUDE ARISON SHAW

The funeral service for Mrs. Maude Arison Shaw of Wattersburg who died at the Uniontown Hospital Sunday evening, was held this afternoon at St. Joachim Prothysian Church. Rev. Steele officiated. Interment was made in the Pleasant View Cemetery. Mrs. Shaw, was well known at Vanderbilt and Dawson being closely related to Justice of the Peace C. B. Arison. The Arison family attended the funeral.

PETER PRITTS

SOMERVILLE, July 30.—Peter Pritts, 55 years old, who formerly resided on a farm near Berlin, died Monday at his home at Hollidaysburg. The body was brought to the H. L. Brant home at Berlin where funeral service was held this afternoon.

Mr. Pritts is survived by his widow and four children, Earl and Roy Pritts, at home. Mrs. Ralph Romes-

An, died June 1, 1922.

Hylan of New York City has announced his candidacy for Governor of New York. If the people "demanded" the election of Candide, another millionaire soon came King of Atlanta, Ga., who is now Mrs. George E. Candide, widow of divorcee. Mrs. George E. Candide, widow of divorcee, is said to have settled $60,000 on her in lieu of alimony, and she is reported to have agreed not to fight his divorce suit, in which he charges cronyism. In deference to the wishes of her husband, Dr. John D. Stewart, of New York, Oga Patrova, motion picture actress, who has just returned from a tour of Europe, has refused to have her hair bobbed.

Patoka, to which has been added a scoring mast at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard, will act as mother ship to the Shenandoah. Should the trials of the Shenandoah prove successful, the dirigible will be sent to Hawaii with the Patoka to take part in the games there later this fall.

TEN FEET OF LUCK SAVED HUNDREDS.

This photograph shows the U. S. S. Boston, plying between Boston and New York, as she appeared after being towed into Newport, R. I., rammed in a fog off Point Judith, R. I., by the freighter Swift Arrow, whose broken stem sign may be seen. Ten feet down and the Boston, with 700 persons on board, would have gone sent to the bottom. Four persons were killed, among them Mrs. Jeanne Green, a Brooklyn, N. Y., actress, whose husband was seriously injured. Captain A. W. Dahl, commander of the Boston, received great praise for the manner he handled the passengers.

The Paramount

"THE SPIDER AND THE ROSE," the feature picture today and tomorrow at the Paramount, presents Alice Lake and Gaston Glass in interesting roles.

The story has to do with early-mission life in California and briefly concerns Paula (Alice Lake), sweetheart of Don Marcello (Gaston Glass), who has pledged himself to the cause of revolutionists seeking to oust the tyrannical conspirator Mendossa from his self-appointed position as governor of California. Love, deceit and treachery have been the successive steps by which Mendossa has been enabled to remove Don Marcello's father as governor.

Plenty of red-blooded man action and fighting accompanies the scenes whereby Don Marcello heads an uprising that eventually deposes Mendossa and proves him the real scoundrel that he is. A beautiful story is the background for this tale and not for one moment does it seem overdone or overacted. It would be difficult to name the player who gives the best performance—they are all excellent.

Friday and Saturday Neal Hart will be presented in "The Left-Hand Brand."

The Sosson

"DADDIES," showing today at the Sosson, is a screen version of David Belasco's popular stage play and is a delightful story of bachelor life. Mae Marsh and Harry Myers appear in the leading roles.

Bachelor life, single blessedness, call it what you will, furnishes the motive power for "Daddies." It is the story of five Yale men who, while yet in college, form a bachelors' club that agrees not to marry unless he first pays a five thousand dollar recompence fee to the club. The story opens with the annual club banquet.

A suggestion is adopted at this banquet which, unknown to the members, signs the club's death warrant. Each member of the club agrees to adopt a war orphan. Later one member finds out his "orphan" is a beautiful girl 17 years old. Another finds his "orphan" to be triplets. Then the bachelors each learn that adopting orphans is an easy matter but looking after them is a much different thing.

The attempt of the foster fathers to look after their charges give rise to some exquisite comedy, intermingled with real heart interest. Of course, the inevitable happens. Each finds, with the exception of the one who adopted the 17 year old orphan, that child raising requires the gentle hand of a mother. They had all fallen so deeply in love with their respective children that it seemed easier to get a mother than lose the child.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Monte Blue and Harry Myers will be seen in "How to Educate a Wife."

The Orpheum

"BLUFF"—A Paramount picture, featuring Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno, provides splendid entertainment today and Thursday at the Orpheum.

Miss Ayres plays Betty Hollowell. She is down to her last dime and has a brother, invalided in an automobile accident, on her hands. Betty searches without results for work when she hits upon the bright idea of impersonating a certain internationally famous beauty, Nina Loring, whom she greatly resembles. Now the contract for her gown designs fairly comes pouring in, while, as Betty, the modesty wouldn't even favor her with an interview.

But Nina Loring is wanted in London for embezzeling Red Cross funds. Betty is arrested, but Robert McCormick (Antonio Moreno) attorney for the people in London, sees through Betty's bluff and, although he doesn't know her game, is sure it is nothing crooked. He takes over her defense, bluffs a politically controlled deputy of police into his way of thinking and—but that would be telling too much of the story.

"Bluff" has been produced with a light comedy touch and is a real novelty as picture entertainment goes.

A Six Ounce Bottle of Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription 777 for 75 Cents.

If you have headache or puffed sinews, swollen ankles or clammy hands, it's probably poison settled in your kidneys and the sooner you get rid of it, the further away from the grave you'll be.

Roots and herbs are best for this purpose as Dr. Carey, for 40 years a practicing physician, well knew.

If your kidneys are making your life unbearable, the best medicine is none too good. Cut out this notice, take it to C. Roy Herrel or any good druggist and see what you get. Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription 777 comes in both liquid and tablet form and the price is only 75 cents.—Advertisement met at State College for information. Spray for the Peach Moth—it is time to spray again for the oriental peach moth as most of the eggs have been laid or will be laid during the next week. Apply a spray of nicotine sulphate and self-boiled lime sulphur now, and again in two weeks. Cool weather has delayed the development of the first brood so that there is not going to be as many broods of the moth this year. At most, there will be only four broods even if the fall is unusually long and warm.

Garden Greens—This has been a better season for greens such as spinach, lettuce, and early celery, than for the fruiting vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and eggplants. Those who heeded the advice last spring in these columns to plant a succession of greens so as to have a continuous supply during the summer have had an abundance. Now we have had an abundance. Now is the time to sow fall onions, lettuce and carrots.

Damaging Insects—The pear slug and fall web-worms are doing considerable damage throughout the state. The control measure advised is to apply a spray of three pounds of arsenic of lead in 50 gallons of water. Apply at once for the web worms for when the caterpillars get large it is hard to control them.

PETEY — A CASE OF TORTURE — BY C. A. NISLEY

The MYSTERY ROAD

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Copyright by LITTLE, BROWN and CO.

"You see my aunt is quite reasonable about the matter," she remarked. "Order some more cigarettes, will you? And some coffee, I think."

Gerald obeyed promptly. Then he leaned forward.

"Madame de Pontiere," he said, "do I understand that I have your permission to pay my addresses to your niece?"

"You must not be foolish," she replied soothingly. "We are exceedingly obliged to you for giving us dinner in this charming place. It is really quite a revelation to me."

"Mademoiselle de Pontiere," Gerald continued, appealing to Pauline, "will you be my wife?"

"Monstreux! Lord Dombey," was the prompt, but not unkindly reply. "I will not!"

"There may I become your master," he pleaded, "hoping that you will change your mind when you find that I am very much in earnest!"

"It appears to me," she answered, "that the office would be a thankless one."

"I am content to take my chance," Gerald pronounced. "I can command all the naval resources which might make life more endurable for you. My personal devotion you are already assured of."

"You had better not tempt us too far," Pauline warned him, a little bitterly. "The good folk at Monte Carlo were only guessing when they called us adventurers, but we are down on our luck just now—we might accept your offer."

"I will take my risk," Gerald declared eagerly. "You have given me encouragement. You have no responsibility. As for the rest, we are all adventurers or adventurers, more or less. I am in quest of happiness and I have met no one else except you who could give it to me."

"There was a touch of real feeling in her eyes as she glanced toward him, feeling, however, composed of varying elements—some curiosity, a tinge of greed, an iota of compassion. She shrugged her shoulders slightly beneath her wrap of black lace.

"How long do you remain in London, Lord Dombey?" she inquired.

"As long as I can be of service to you," was the quick reply. "I was going down to Blarney's soon for want of something better to do. A day's visit there will suffice. I shall remain at your service."

"I am in love with another man," Pauline assured him.

Gerald considered the matter for a moment.

"I do not believe it," he declared, Pauline sighed.

"Nevertheless, it is true," she reiterated. "He is very bad-tempered, and if he knows that I am accepting all these attentions from another man, he will certainly quarrel with you."

"I will risk it," Gerald decided.

"How am I to get rid of this persistent young man?" Pauline asked her aunt.

Madame de Pontiere had a great deal to say about the subject in a rapid undertone. When she had finished, Pauline turned back to her companion.

"My aunt was very much against a renewal of our acquaintance," she told him, "but, as she justly remarks, one must live. This evening has turned our heads a little—return to the fleshpots, you know, and that sort of thing. You shall be my tutor if you will, Lord Dombey, but of one thing you must be very sure—I shall never marry you."

"There is another thing of which you may be equally sure," Gerald rejoined. "I shall never leave off trying to persuade you to."

"Gallant, but pig-headed," Pauline murmured. "You can judge of my aunt's newly found tolerance when I tell you that she permits us to walk in the rose garden. I want to see whether those delphiniums are really as blue as they seem to be."

The walk in the rose gardens, although Gerald welcomed with intense satisfaction this new phase in his relations with Pauline, was in some ways a disappointment. Pauline looked around her all the time with serene pleasure. She was fond of flowers; she knew them all by name, and used often to admire some wretched old blight. She seemed without desire to his suggestion that they should take one of the small boats moored against the bridge, and lay back among the roses while he easily swilled round the small stretch of water. On the far side of the island he let the boat drift and laid the oar across his knees.

"Pauline," he said, leaning a little forward, "you are adorable."

"I suppose it goes without saying that you should find me so," she answered compositely. "I suppose, also, that I must permit you the privilege of my Christian name. On the other hand, do not try to get on too quickly, will you? I mean, were you that you have reached the extreme limit of my complaisance?"

His eyes flushed for a moment. He was much too apathetic to regard her indifference as anything more than part of the game. It was a duel between the two, the result of which he scarcely doubted, but with his usual impetuosity he resented delay.

"You will accept me some day," he said. "Why not now? We could spend the honeymoon in Paris and go on to the Italian lakes. Or we could be married at the embassy in Paris if you liked."

"You are taking base advantage of

Youth and Grace in Woman's Dress

Leading Designers Aim to Please, Knowing Wishes of All Ages.

Poor madame! Having a love of the beautiful and a discriminating taste in dress, and being fortunate in the possession of a long purse, she still is as bodily off as Flora McFlimley, with nothing to wear—unless she has succeeded in retaining the slim Miss Houssette. Under the autocratic rule of designers, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, an ideal has been created and a standard established, and life, as to clothes, is simple, for the woman who meets the requirements, though otherwise it is a problem requiring devoted attention and involving many difficulties.

It is as if the whole world of fashion makers had conspired against the woman who is smart, yet not necessarily.

"This lonely spot," she murmured, dipping her hand in the water. "I have told you that I am in love with another man."

"You will forget him in a week," Gerald assured her. "I am a most companionable person."

"I have no doubt that you have given many people the opportunity of finding you so," she replied dryly. "However, I am not prepared just yet for such an experiment."

"Pauline, do you like me little?" he asked earnestly.

She looked him in the eyes.

"Not very much," she admitted frankly. "You see, the nicer part of me—the part with which I should care—is numb—numbed with mirth-tunes. The most that I can say is that if you are very kind, I may change to some extent. Personally, I think it hopeless."

"You wouldn't consider, I suppose," he suggested, "telling me your history."

"I am content to take my chance," Gerald pronounced. "I can command all the naval resources which might make life more endurable for you. My personal devotion you are already assured of."

"You had better not tempt us too far," Pauline warned him, a little bitterly. "The good folk at Monte Carlo were only guessing when they called us adventurers, but we are down on our luck just now—we might accept your offer."

"I will take my risk," Gerald declared eagerly. "You have given me encouragement. You have no responsibility. As for the rest, we are all adventurers or adventurers, more or less. I am in quest of happiness and I have met no one else except you who could give it to me."

"There was a touch of real feeling in her eyes as she glanced toward him, feeling, however, composed of varying elements—some curiosity, a tinge of greed, an iota of compassion. She shrugged her shoulders slightly beneath her wrap of black lace.

"How long do you remain in London, Lord Dombey?" she inquired.

"As long as I can be of service to you," was the quick reply. "I was going down to Blarney's soon for want of something better to do. A day's visit there will suffice. I shall remain at your service."

"I am in love with another man," Pauline assured him.

Gerald considered the matter for a moment.

"I do not believe it," he declared, Pauline sighed.

"Nevertheless, it is true," she reiterated. "He is very bad-tempered, and if he knows that I am accepting all these attentions from another man, he will certainly quarrel with you."

"I will risk it," Gerald decided.

"How am I to get rid of this persistent young man?" Pauline asked her aunt.

Madame de Pontiere had a great deal to say about the subject in a rapid undertone. When she had finished, Pauline turned back to her companion.

"My aunt was very much against a renewal of our acquaintance," she told him, "but, as she justly remarks, one must live. This evening has turned our heads a little—return to the fleshpots, you know, and that sort of thing. You shall be my tutor if you will, Lord Dombey, but of one thing you must be very sure—I shall never marry you."

"There is another thing of which you may be equally sure," Gerald rejoined. "I shall never leave off trying to persuade you to."

"Gallant, but pig-headed," Pauline murmured. "You can judge of my aunt's newly found tolerance when I tell you that she permits us to walk in the rose garden. I want to see whether those delphiniums are really as blue as they seem to be."

The walk in the rose gardens, although Gerald welcomed with intense satisfaction this new phase in his relations with Pauline, was in some ways a disappointment. Pauline looked around her all the time with serene pleasure. She was fond of flowers; she knew them all by name, and used often to admire some wretched old blight. She seemed without desire to his suggestion that they should take one of the small boats moored against the bridge, and lay back among the roses while he easily swilled round the small stretch of water. On the far side of the island he let the boat drift and laid the oar across his knees.

"Pauline," he said, leaning a little forward, "you are adorable."

"I suppose it goes without saying that you should find me so," she answered compositely. "I suppose, also, that I must permit you the privilege of my Christian name. On the other hand, do not try to get on too quickly, will you? I mean, were you that you have reached the extreme limit of my complaisance?"

His eyes flushed for a moment. He was much too apathetic to regard her indifference as anything more than part of the game. It was a duel between the two, the result of which he scarcely doubted, but with his usual impetuosity he resented delay.

"You will accept me some day," he said. "Why not now? We could spend the honeymoon in Paris and go on to the Italian lakes. Or we could be married at the embassy in Paris if you liked."

"You are taking base advantage of

Judged by her silhouettes—so it be de rigueur—any woman in these times may wear anything she chooses, and usually she is successful. For American women are graduates in taste and style. For them the best designers of Europe and America have worked out models that will please the fancy and comfort the heart by keeping youth and grace in the figure.

The fashionable women of a generation ago was unaware of the architecture of dress, and being fortunate in the possession of a long purse, she still is as bodily off as Flora McFlimley, with nothing to wear—unless she has succeeded in retaining the slim Miss Houssette. Under the autocratic rule of designers, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, an ideal has been created and a standard established, and life, as to clothes, is simple, for the woman who meets the requirements, though otherwise it is a problem requiring devoted attention and involving many difficulties.

Poor madame! Having a love of the beautiful and a discriminating taste in dress, and being fortunate in the possession of a long purse, she still is as bodily off as Flora McFlimley, with nothing to wear—unless she has succeeded in retaining the slim Miss Houssette. Under the autocratic rule of designers, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, an ideal has been created and a standard established, and life, as to clothes, is simple, for the woman who meets the requirements, though otherwise it is a problem requiring devoted attention and involving many difficulties.

The woman who is a real gown, the real test, has many variations, the essential of which is the coat dress. This, in light or heavy materials, is becoming to every shape of any proportion. The gown pattern is made in a straight model, with a panel, like a full-length waistcoat, whether plaid and striped, or plaid and bold by a belt or girdle. The idea guides the tailoring hand in some of the latest French evening gowns of lace and tulles over slips of satin, with wide sleeves, and in chevrons in a subtle shade of white.

The waistline dropped to the point of the hip was the life-saving innovation. To that is drawn the long V-shaped neck, the gracefully tapered shawl collar, the wide cascading cape, the jabot. The skirt in slight drapery, is caught usually with a motif of flowers or jeweled ornament, or a gariture that trails in lengthwise line to the bottom of the skirt.

Never before was a car so wisely engineered and so carefully built to assure maximum safety and long life.

This is true even of the chassis.

Designing from the ground up for balloon tires, the Chrysler engineers working with the tire makers have now evolved a special six-ply, high-speed balloon tire that will stand up and wear as long as your cord tires, and still contribute all the resiliency of ordinary balloon tires.

These Results Mean Value Never Before Expected

The Phaeton

In less than six months, more than 15,000 buyers have chosen the Chrysler Six because of the things it does, and the way it keeps on doing them with a minimum of upkeep cost.

Never before the Chrysler Six did a stock car afford 70 miles an hour or better, plus riding comfort not equalled even by heavy, costly cars.

Your Chrysler Six will actually carry you in comfort over cobbled streets or rutted roads at speeds up to 60 miles an hour. This because of three main features: its perfect balance, its special spring suspension which prevents sidesway, and its special six-ply, high-speed balloon tires.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments, ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

PARADE, FIREWORKS FOR OPENING AUG. 5 OF EVERSON STREET

Connellsville Firemen Will Be Invited to Take Part in Celebration.

HALF HOLIDAY PLANNED

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, July 30.—Last night's meeting at Tyrone Hall at Everson showed more enthusiasm than Monday night's concerning the celebration that Everson will have August 5 for the opening of the street and road to Connellsville. Burgess Oliver Shannon presided. James Keegan was secretary. A contract was signed with the Continental Fireworks Company of Dubuque for fireworks for the occasion.

A half holiday will be declared in Everson, and it is thought that one of the largest crowds the town has ever had will be present.

To Daniel Kuhns, Everson's 84-year-old Civil War veteran, has fallen the honor of the opening of the new road.

Harry Sutler will be chief marshal of the parade.

Council has appointed a committee to ask Mount Pleasant, Scottdale and Connellsville to attend to take part.

The money left from the celebration will be used in starting a fund for the establishing of a playground.

Another meeting will be held Thursday evening and at this time the program will be completed.

Mrs. Christina Raoff Dead.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Billehner for her mother, Mrs. Christian Raoff, in charge of Rev. Schilling. Interment was made in the Mount Lebanon Cemetery.

Boy Injured by Car.

Harry Sutler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sutler of Parker Avenue, playing in Chestnut street yesterday morning, ran from behind an automobile directly in front of that driven by R. C. Stouffer of Kingsview. The child was picked up by Mr. Stouffer and carried to the office of Dr. J. P. Stieckler, where Dr. Stieckler and Gilbert found his shoulder was broken.

Personal Mention.

Misses Margaret and Irene Kurtz of Broadway are visiting with Staiblown friends.

Miss Alice Calvert of Pittsburgh who has been spending the past few days with Miss Georgia Wray, left with Miss Wray this morning for Atlantic City, where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. W. J. Doorley left today for Atlantic City.

Miss Naomi Trout has gone to Atlantic City.

Miss Hazel Johnson of Washington, D. C., is visiting with Miss Helen Bryant.

Mrs. M. E. McKeon is visiting with Eric friends.

Mrs. W. H. Colgrove of Fairport Harbor, Ohio, is visiting with Roy and Mrs. J. O. Glenn.

Miss Mildred Nixon has gone to Ashtabula, Ohio, to visit with her brother, Lester, for 10 days.

MINER DIES AFTER MOONSHINE DOSE NEAR CONFLUENCE

CONNELLSVILLE, July 30.—An inquest into the death of Samuel Moses, aged about 60 years, a miner living at a small town near here, who died suddenly last Saturday afternoon, was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner H. S. Kimmel of Somerset and the coroner's jury after hearing the evidence offered decided that Moses came to his death as a result of drinking poisonous moonshine whiskey. He was found dead in a corner of a room at his home some time after drinking the poisonous liquor. It is said that Moses gave his partner to an alleged bootlegger for a pint of moonshine whiskey.

Coroner Kimmel has referred the case to District Attorney Cober and an investigation was started today by the county authorities. The arrest of the person who is alleged to have furnished Moses with the poisonous whiskey is expected by the county authorities some time today or to tomorrow.

The Ideal Woman

Strong, healthy and beautiful in form and feature with a happy disposition. Upon her condition depends the physical well-being of her children and the happiness of those about her. It is only by making the best of herself that a woman can give her best to the world. When weak and failing there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from roots and herbs which for fifty years has been restoring the women of America to health and happiness. — Advertisements.

Inconstant

The critic was talking about love.

"Good writers," he said, "never treat love as an immortal and divine thing. Poor writers always do."

"Poor writers go on about love ridiculous. They are like young Jack Hockins."

"I like you, Mr. Hockins," a pretty girl said to young Jack. "But I like Mr. Hemingway, too." Mr. Hemingway, she added with a sinner, says he thinks about me 365 days in the year."

"Hush! He wants me off every four years," does he? said Jack Hosking. "Surely Miss Methusalem—Ethel—surely you don't compare a lawnmower attachment like that to a handkerchief such as mine!"

Speed of Shooting Hammer

Breaching hammers are made with six, eight and nine-inch strokes, and the speed of the piston depends somewhat on the length of the hammer. The speed of the piston also depends on the piston; the short pistons running more rapidly than a long piston. These piston speeds will vary from ten to sixteen blows per second, or from 600 to 1,600 blows per minute. The faster speeds are commonly found in shipbuilding and carbuilding plants, and the slower speeds are found in boiler shops.

THE SOCIAL SIDE

"What will this operation on the nose cost me, doctor?" inquired the wealthy patient.

"One thousand dollars, madam," responded the doctor.

"Isn't that an awful price?" she asked.

"Certainly. But you expect to tell your stylish friends a great deal about this operation, do you not?"

"—I suppose so."

"Of course. So you must be in a position to conclude—and the doctor charged me an awful price."
